These cells are found in the bone marrow and in the peripheral blood. In the plasma, they make antibodies. The class of antibodies that plasma cells produce is either IgG or IgM, and both are called immunoglobulins. IgG antibodies are involved in a number of disease states, including lupus, and are also important to the immune system and the body's normal response to infection. IgM antibodies are important in helping the immune system to fight against infection, and are also important in the production of complement, the body's response to injury and inflammation.Seth Kernerman Seth Kernerman is an American songwriter and music producer from Philadelphia, Pennsylvania.
